

boston
cyberarts festival

Tangentlab Collective in association with Boston Cyberarts presents: The Jackal Project

Sun April 27, 10am-5pm
Katharine Gibbs School
126 Newbury St, Boston

Wheelchair accessible Admission free

The Jackals' work consists of breathing life into supposedly dead things: lost technology, forgotten and abandoned objects, and all that some might dare call garbage. For Cyberarts the Jackals will create a laboratory where kids and adults can rip apart electronics and make art out of what they find inside. Younger kids shape colored electrical wire into wearables while older kids hack circuits to create their own blinky, chirpy critters. In addition, Jackals present the "$5 toy sculpture challenge" and will have on hand examples of more complex projects and instruction sheets explaining how you can do this at home. For more information visit jackal.tangentlab.org.

